Symbolism of the color green in "Sir Gawain and the Green Knight"

In "Sir Gawain and the Green Knight," the knight who we later find out is Bertilak, takes a liking to the color green. He could have chosen red for strength and power or purple for royalty and wealth, but instead he chose green. The green knight has green tinted skin and features, a green holly. Sir Gawain's speech to Lord Bertilak reinforces that women are the driving force of action in Sir Gawain and the Green Knight. Many of the themes noted in Sir Gawain and the Green Knight are traditionally masculine ones—heroism, a quest, warlike conflict—but it is imperative to note that the genesis of the story would not have occurred if it was not for the ulterior motives of the... Sir Gawain and the Green Knight is a late 14th-century chivalric romance in Middle English. The author is unknown; the title was given centuries later. It is one of the best-known Arthurian stories, with its plot combining two types of folk motifs: the beheading game, and the exchange of winnings. Written in stanzas of alliterative verse, each of which ends in a rhyming bob and Sir Gawain and the Green Knight. Anonymous.
